INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

This genealogy is a continuation of an amazingly accurate compilation by Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis, published about 1877. I am copying herein the complete compilation by Prof. Eustis by photo offset without alterations. Some of his records have been checked in the old records of towns near Boston and I feel sure they are very dependable. I have not found any obvious error and only one obvious omission, which is that of Charles Buckminster Eustis of Minneapolis who is listed as a twin brother of George Barker Eustis. See Charles Lyman (6) Eustis, Item 65. His twin brother George, adult, appears as Item 103 but there is no corresponding item to cover the adult twin brother Charles in Prof. Eustis' compilation. I have added Charles Buckminster to my own compilation.

It may be of interest for me to tell the story of my effort to continue up to this date of 1968 the Prof. Eustis genealogy now after 100 years have elapsed.

My father took me to England about 1912 and I heard various stories of a probable connection of our family with Eustis, Earl of Boulogne, who was with William the Conqueror, at the Battle of Hastings in the year 1066 AD. Father took me with him to the "College of Arms" in London to get some information about this probability. Also I received from my father a copy of the publication of Prof. Eustis. I later had a camp in the town of Eustis, Maine, which is named after my great grandfather, Charles Lyman Eustis (6) Item 65. A letter about this from Charles Lyman Eustis to his grandson, John P. Eustis - see Item 102-1, appears in the appendix to this publication. The original from which the typewritten transcript was prepared is very faded. A few words we were unable to ascertain so they are left blank. Also as a boy I heard of William Eustis (5), a surgeon, and our first Surgeon U. S. Ambassador to Holland, Secretary of War for Pres. Madison, Governor of Mass. - see Item 26 of Prof. Eustis - and heard about how Governor Eustis took Lafayette to lay the corner stone of Bunker Hill Monument. His carriage is at Wayside Inn and his regalia at the Hancock-Clark House at Lexington, Mass. I heard a story about the nephew of Gov. Eustis of Mass. and how he became provoked with his uncle, which resulted in his going first to France and then to New Orleans, where I believe the extensive and distinguished Eustis family there were established by his marriage there to Katherine Chotard. I learned how Eustis, Florida, Lake Eustis and Fort Eustis, Virginia were named for an ancestor, whom I now know was General Abraham (6) Item 48. I heard of James Biddle Eustis of New Orleans, Ambassador to France. Thus there was transmitted from these and many other tales which I heard, an appreciation and background of being part of a fine distinguished family with very long lineage in America.

In 1932 I commenced to collect news clippings about the Eustis family and to send questionnaires to many people, having our name, in order to discover their connections with our family. A reasonable intelligent pride in parents and family is, to me, the very foundation of a will to succeed and leads to a good life. This knowledge motivates a thoughtful young person to do his or her best. A successful life becomes a moral obligation based on the precedent of those who have gone before.

My motive in preparing this up to date compilation is not simply to record the facts, but is done with the hope that this background will motivate other young people bearing our name to the best achievement and leadership that they too may be an honor to the family and to our country. I hope that all parents having this up to date compilation at hand will use it to inspire their children to a full use of their talents as a debt of honor to their forefathers. Also I hope some one will have pride and interest to extend it long after the year 1968.

I make no claim that this is a perfect, complete or absolutely accurate genealogy, but I have worked upon it intermittantly with help of two different secretaries over almost forty years.

Also I have had great help from many persons in the family who have dug out the facts for me, have filled out as best they could, my questionnaires, have given me charts of parts of the family, and have answered very many letters. Perhaps I should try to list all these helpful members of the family, but I fear that any accidental omissions by me might appear less grateful than just saying "Thank You" to all that helped and especially to those that helped and helped again and again.

An appendix at the end of this publication gives certain charts, letters and publications that may give additional interesting facts, comments and clarification. Also the burials as of this date at the cemeteries at Newton, Mass., Winchester, Mass. and Mt. Auburn, Cambridge, Mass. are provided.

Copies of this book are being sent for reference purposes to many libraries including:

Library of Congress

New England Historical Genealogical Society, Boston, Mass.

Maine Historical Society, Portland, Maine

Harvard College Alumni Assc. Archives

Bowdoin Alumni Assc. Archives

Wesleyan University Alumni Assc. Archives, Middletown, Conn.

Library of Portland, Maine

Library of Minneapolis, Minn.

In reading back and checking the list I have been appalled by the omissions and at first was apologetic. However, I may fairly say that while some one might have picked up more facts on some people, it is quite impossible to check people whose place of birth, death, marriage and place of interment are unknown. Town and Cemetery records, often good, have had lapses. An example of a baffling town record reads "A male child to Richard and Anna". Another important frustration is the delay in responding to letters and repeated follow ups to some living persons; amazing lack of knowledge by families, especially exact knowledge. Also some seem to prefer to be stray or lost human beings. These are but examples of the difficulties encountered.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

A photocopy of the genealogy of the Eustis family in the United States from 1674 approximately to 1874 approximately as prepared by Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis of Harvard College.

An index of all the males listed by Prof. Eustis, in his compilation, published hereinbefore, but not including some who were children at the time of his compilation. Items No. 1 to 111 cover years 1674 to 1874.

A compilation by Warner Eustis based upon the compilation of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis, 1574-1874, and continuing the same to 1968. This covers all known children of all ages and generations from 1874 to 1968. Each person appears first under the heading of the male parent and subsequently as adults if they are males, but not if they are females (except that certain few females who have attained special personal distinction before or after marriage and also entered as if they were males). Note: The index of the compilation by Warner Eustis contains all persons and all children (both male and female) of all Eustis families in U. S. covered by the compilation of Warner Eustis including other Eustis families not listed by Prof. H. L. Eustis.

Because of the existence of members of the families having the same or similar given names and being of about the same generation, it is believed that the reader will profit by my action in breaking up the descendants of William I not only by generations as indicated, but actually separated as families. The members of each family are of course arranged and numbered by ascending generations from William I. Groups or families (not descended from William I) are given in separate groups and the generations naturally start with the oldest known member of each family or group in the U. S.

A compilation, so far as has proved possible, of the descendants of Glover Eustis of Marblehead, Mass. They do not know the name of their grandfather and are probably descendants of an English settler, possibly coming from Maine or the Boston Area. The name of Eustis first appears in Marblehead, Mass. records as two "wainers" or rope makers in 1840. A rope and cordage factory had started in Marblehead shortly before that, it appears from the history of Marblehead. Search of Marblehead Records and historical publication at Marblehead Library follows.

EXPLANATION OF INDEX

Following this page is an index of persons listed by Warner Eustis in his compilation of the Eustis Families of the United States.

a. This index covers persons who had not died before the year 1876 or were not closed out by Prof. H. L. Eustis.

b. It differs from the preceding reprinted compilation of Prof. Eustis by including some persons and families not in any way connected with William I of Rumney Marsh, Mass. (year 1674) who is the founder of the largest Eustis family in U. S.

c. The index endeavors to cover all known children born since 1876 or slightly before that date.

d. The index also endeavors to cover all adult persons named Eustis of both sexes and regardless of their age or family lineage.

e. In the compilation of Warner Eustis there is a breakdown into families.

f. In the index each individual appears under a number and probably two numbers to cover both the childhood and adult periods of their lives. As children they are listed under the number of their male parent.

For each adult person, there is first: the name; second, the generation (probably from William I of Rumney Marsh); third, the names of their direct male ancestors, whose name in each case also shows his generation by a declining list of numbers. All of these persons shown as ancestors appear in their own proper places, either in the compilation of Prof. Eustis or in the compilation of Warner Eustis and in the indices of both. There are a very few persons, however, whose ancestry is incomplete or apparently undeterminable. The ancestry of each person listed as a descendant of William I of Rumney Marsh is clear, definite and believed to be absolutely authentic. The same applies also to the family of Tobias Eustis. The numbers applying to this family all appear in Section O. The numbers applying to the large Eustis family descended from William I are numbered from No. 1 to N-11.

The Glover Eustis family of Marblehead, Mass. presents a confusing picture. There is no question however about the family of Dr. Richard Spelman Eustis, or its descent from William (1) - William (2) and General Abraham (6). Regarding the other Eustis persons I have had repeated invaluable guidance (1968) from the memories and records of Mr. and Mrs. Glover George Eustis, who is an undertaker in Marblehead, Mass. He was born in 1899, son of James Herbert . I have studied at length the vital statistics of Marblehead and the records of the Marblehead Public Library, including a special survey of the Town statistics made by the Essex Institute of Salem, Mass. I have some reasons to feel (and Mr. Glover George Eustis feels) they are connected to the Eustis family in Maine. Neighbors have vague ideas of Rye, New York. Anyhow I feel sure they are not a family from Ireland, as is Leo Eustis of West Newton, Mass. listed in this compilation. They may, however, represent a separate immigration like Tobias Eustis or Leo Eustis.

I did not find, in a good history of Marblehead, any mention of the name Eustis among men who fought in King Phillip's War - nor the American Revolution - nor the Civil War. Somewhat before 1840 a rope walk and cordage manufacture was started in Marblehead. Both Ephraim Eustis, who married Hannah Snelling on July 14, 1842, and Richard Skinner, who married Amanda W. Snelling, were listed as cordwainers, so likely they came there as young men to work. They may be brothers, but in the town records it is at least clear that Ephraim married Hannah Snelling on July 14, 1842 and Richard Skinner Eustis is recorded as marrying Amanda W. Snelling, perhaps a sister, on April 14, 1846.

Town records also indicate that Eleanor Skinner Eustis died Aug. 24, 1872 at 78 yrs. 4 mos. 2 days. Her middle name of Skinner suggests that she may have been the mother of Ephraim and Richard Skinner Eustis, cordwainers, mentioned above, but she is not found on the Marblehead birth records, nor are Ephraim and Richard Skinner Eustis to be found on the Marblehead^{birth} records. Thus it appears that ~~is~~ she is indeed the mother of these men she came to Marblehead from elsewhere with them, or later.

We are of the tentative opinion that in the Glover George Eustis compilation they are in probable error as regards the name of Sarah, wife of Richard, who should be listed as Amanda Hubbard, wife of Richard Skinner Eustis. This is supported by the Marblehead Vital Statistics because births of several of the children credited to Richard and Sarah Eustis appear to be listed on the town records as the children of Richard Skinner Eustis and Amanda.

The Marblehead Mass. Vital Statistics records of births, marriage and deaths are voluminous, so we have not copied them into this record as they are available to other genealogical investigators at Marblehead.

Further confirmation of the above analysis based by us on a comparison of the Glover George Eustis personal records and the records of Marblehead, as we discuss them above, is further confirmed by the memory of a long time resident of Marblehead, who remembers about Amanda Eustis and says she was a well known mid-wife in that town and that she knew the daughter of Hannah Eustis and William Wright. Hannah was the fifth child of Richard Skinner and Amanda.

Washington, and Lafayette, too, stayed at the now dilapidated Shirley-Eustis house on the Dorchester-Roxbury line, home of two early governors of Massachusetts. A movement is on foot to restore the historic mansion, built in 1747 by Gov. William Shirley, and move it to the Fenway as a place where present day chief executives of the Commonwealth might entertain distinguished guests. Gov. Shirley, although a Royal appointee, was beloved by the people because of his sympathy with Colonial aspirations. Gov. William Eustis bought the house in 1819.

Historic House in Boston Is Aided by Federal Grant

Special to The New York Times

BOSTON, June 22—One of the first grants of Federal funds under the Demonstration Cities Act was formally made yesterday for restoration of the Shirley-Eustis House in the Roxbury District.

Charles M. Haar, Assistant Secretary for metropolitan development of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, attended the ceremonies. He said the Boston project would serve as a model elsewhere.

The Federal grant of $100,000 will be matched by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. An additional $75,000 to insure maintenance of the property was raised by private citizens.

The Shirley-Eustis House was built in 1747 by Gov. William Shirley. William Eustis bought the house in 1819. Both George Washington and the Marquis de la Fayette were entertained there. After conversion into flats, the building began to deteriorate. It was acquired in 1911 by the Shirley-Eustis Association, but no funds were available for restoration.

Lafayette Visited Boston in Triumph

Probably no foreign dignitary save Winston Churchill has ever been held in greater reverence by Americans than Lafayette, the valiant French marquis who brought aid to the Colonies in their struggle for independence and helped Gen. Washington pursue Cornwallis to his final surrender at Yorktown.

The name of Lafayette has become a symbol of enduring friendship with France. It inspired the American airmen who in World War I formed the Lafayette Escadrille and fought for France until the American Army arrived.

It is not easy for us of this generation to comprehend the affection in which Lafayette was held by the colonists and their scions.

Some measure of this attitude of devotion now comes to us through a new book, "Lafayette Guest of the Nation," by Mrs. Jane Bacon MacIntire of Waban, published by Anthony J. Simone Press, Newton (260 pp, $5).

In this work the author, a former president of the Friends of Lafayette, chronicles the events of a year-long triumphal tour of the French general made in 1824 when he was the guest of President Monroe and the Congress.

For thirteen months he toured the then 24 states amid demonstrations of affection probably unparalleled in that age. Thomas Jefferson remarked in a letter to a friend "He is making a triumphal progress through the States from town to town such as no crowned head ever received. It will have a good effect with the people of Europe, but probably a different one on their sovereigns."

In Boston he was the guest of Gov. William Eustis, Ex-Gov. John Brooke and Mayor Josiah Quincy.

There were infantry salutes, elaborate receptions, reunions with "my old Light Infantry"; a special ceremony at Breed's and Bunker Hill, meetings of the Society of Cincinnati, a three-hour procession and a reunion dinner with the aged President John Adams at his Quincy home. Lafayette was the first to sign the donors' list for the projected Bunker Hill monument and returned the following June to assist at the corner-stone ceremony.

Mrs. MacIntire's account of the Boston and Portsmouth visits is illuminated with many interpretations which give the reader a valid picture of colonial New England, its geography and its people.

FUNERAL of GENERAL EUSTIS.

Brig. General Eustis has been from the establishment of the present arrangement of the Army, in command of the Sixth Military Department, having his headquarters in Portland, Maine. He returned Thursday of last week from a journey to Charleston, S.C., somewhat indisposed, but was on the following day, able to attend to business. He subsequently became more seriously ill, and on Tuesday morning, he died of a congestion on the brain. His funeral was celebrated on Wednesday with Military honors.

The funeral service performed by Rev. Mr. Pratt at the Episcopal Church, to which place the body was conveyed, under escort of several Portland Volunteer Companies of Infantry and Light Artillery together with Captain Porter's company and U.S. Artillery and followed by a numerous civil procession, consisting of the friends of the deceased, the officers of the Army, the Municipal and other civil and military officers and members of the Bar. General Edmund Fessenden, Hon. L. Cutler, Captains Porter and Plummer, Lieut. Allen and Assistant Surgeon Russell of the U.S. Army officiated as Pall bearers. After the services, the procession resumed, and the remains of the deceased were attended to the railroad depot, for the purpose of being conveyed to Massachusetts for interment. General Eustis was bred to the law, and was admitted to the Bar, having pursued his legal studies in the office of the late Chief Justice Parker, of whom he was a relative, but he early entered the Army. He was 57 years of age. He died June 27, 1843 at 7 A. M.

Beaufort, S. C. , July 25, 1886

My dear Grandson,

I was delighted last week to rec. letters from two of my sons, John T. and E. M. E. and two Grandsons in regard to their excursion to the tim pond in the town of Eustis and I thought perhaps a short out (outline?) of my first interest in that wild region would interest you and accordingly I will give you some of the details of my experience. When 20 years old I was convinced that the pioneers of a new country had the best opportunity to make money and accordingly my brother John and Harvey Wait (Brother-in-Law) agreed to go and investigate the Dead River region in the month of May, 1822. We set a day. When I was ready they were not which was thrice repeated and I started alone to examine the wilds of Dead River. On Horsback I started for Kingfield 75 miles from Dixfield, arrived there the 2nd day, put up my horse till I called on my return. On foot assended the high land west of Kingfield at the head of what was then called Jerusalem Stairs which are gintle regular steps in solid rock of the mountain only navigated on foot -- arrived at Jerusalem 2 o'clock P. M. 12 miles to Dead River engaged a pilot to show me the way for 100 pay in advance, he representing himself as a wonderful traviler in the woods--after going about 2 miles I found myself some rods ahead of my guide and I simply thought he intended to desert me. I told him I had engaged him to show me the way and I thought he could better do it by going ahead. We arrived at Mt. Noah Staples at the head of Mount Bigelow at sunset. The next day with Mr. Asa Richardson we ascended Mt. Bigelow about 2,000 feet had a grand view of the surrounding country with the same Mr. Richardson I went up the north branch to tim Brook and then returned to Dixfield.

In the autumn of 1822 my mother wished to visit her friends in Mass. and she owning a good chaise the only one in town and I having a good strong horse proposed to harness up and take the journey through Mass. in September. On arriving in Boston I learned that there was to be a sale of land at auction in Boston of land in Maine belonging to Mass. embracing the same I had in view; the terms was 1/4 cash the ballance in 4 equal annual payments. I talked the matter over with Daniel Adams who married my cousin and Joseph Clark who married my aunt, of Medfield, Mass. , if they would make the first payment of cash I would meet all the other payments by sales of timber and give two thirds of the land all paid for at the end of 4 years which as you will undoubtedly see was a most extravagant offer. After I viewed the land in May the forest fires went through the tract I expected to get my first money from and in November I went to see that in order to save anything it must be cut immediately and foolishly sold at a loss of more than $1500, whereby I got the most insulting and abusive letters from Clark and Adams and backed by my old aunt Clark our intercourse was very cool during the winter and as we had so many unhappy words I resolved to take the responsibility on my own shoulders. In the spring of 1823 had in my (own) enough to pay them what they had advanced and told them I was determined to clear them from all responsibilities and I then told them I would go on and complete the original agreement on one condition that I would never be the subject of such complaints and paid over to Mass. the next payment due Oct. 8, 4 months in advance and have kept the bills all paid in advance all bills paid and I had given Clark and Adams some 4 or $400 clear profit and after some 4 or 5 years I recommended to buy north half of next range which is now called West Eustis. When we completed that trade I told them I should charge Company 200 per day for service; Adams proposed 1/2 the amount to be paid me when I had paid from sales of timber but we never cut a stick of timber on the tract but I sold land and timber together for 300 per cent profit giving Adams a profit of $11,000 when he refused to pay me extra dollar because I did not sell the timber but sold land and timber all together.

About six months before I sold the Dead River land I went to Medfield, Mass. saw Mr. Clark and Adams told them I thought there was a prospect that we might sell our land at Dead River. Adams said he did not want to sell I returned to Mr. Clark spent the night offered to sell him and Adams my part for 100 per acre he said he should be glad to sell his for that price and my old aunt said she agreed with him. I put those few lines in my pocket and within six months closed a sale for $32,000 and had 1/4 cash and the balance in 3 equal payments and had the notes so written that we could divide them in 3 equal parts and Clarke got the whole of his share irrespective of his bargain with me as his agreement on other sed Medfield Map March 8, 1845 whereas I own one undivided third part of a tract of land west of Mr. Bingham's Purch as if C. L. Eustis will make sale of my interest in said Land within six months for 100 per acre the said Eustis shall be entitled to all he can get over that to pay him for his trouble.

Signed Joseph Clarke

You will understand that the 7 pages refer to the general transaction of the whole Business and this sheet to private Business between Jos. Clarke & C. L. Eustis which was settled by Law whereby C. L. E. recovered of Jos. Clarke $3,000 for disputing the above contract. - I hope you will be able to read & understand my tremulous writing as I am almost 4 score & 4 years old.

FOUNDING OF EUSTIS IS IMMORTALIZED

Monument Erected Cathedral of Pines to Pioneer Charles Lyman Eustis

EUSTIS, Aug. 5 - One hundred and one years ago a young man who had not then reached his majority, lived with and operated a large farm for his widowed mother in Dixfield, Maine. The family had moved a few years before this from Rutland, Mass., his birthplace. A weekly or bi-monthly newspaper gave him the intelligence that the State of Massachusetts would soon sell at public auction wild timberlands, in the Province of Maine, in the Dead River section.

Former information which he had picked up was revived in his memory and he determined to investigate. He promptly journeyed on foot to the last outpost of civilization, in or near Kingfield. There he secured an Indian guide, who claimed to know Arnold's route to Quebec. After one day's travel the guide fell behind and was seen no more. The sturdy young traveler ascended the Jerusalem stairs on Mt. Abraham and later climbed Mt. Bigelow. From this vantage point his view of the Dead River valley enabled him to pick out the big timber near the river. Being somewhat of a surveyor and accustomed to traveling and plotting by the compass, he got bearings of the land he wanted to possess. He returned to Dixfield, sold a pair of steers and bought a horse. His mother owned a fine old chaise.

The horse and chaise, with the mother and young pioneer son, drove from Dixfield to Taunton, Mass. Uncles and cousins lived there, and he interested one of them to go to the auction and bid in for him (he being a minor) the territory now known by its original naming as Eustis township. The initial payment of some three hundred dollars he had got together by the sale of some farm stock, by pledges and by borrowing. The succeeding payments were made from the proceeds of his lumbering operations.

This young man, Charles Lyman Eustis, was born in Rutland, Mass., in 1822, the pioneer lumberman of the Dead River and the first white man to go through this part of the Country after General Arnold's march toward Quebec. Desiring to perpetuate the memory of this sterling pioneer, his oldest grandson, now a man past the noon-day of life, John P. Eustis of Cambridge and Newton, Mass., has erected a memorial in the Cathedral Pines in Eustis, a natural, irregular prism, weighing some six or seven tons, cut from an outcropping ledge some four or five miles away, hauled to the pines and erected on a concrete base.

On this natural shaped monument, some eight feet high, is fixed a life-size bas-relief likeness in bronze of the pioneer. It was modeled from a daguerreotype taken when he was about forty years of age. The bronze also shows appropriate words and dates. Discerning people who have seen this impressive memorial are unanimous in praise of it from an artistic point of view, and all who have seen the picture from which the bas-relief was modeled express wonder and delight for the perfect likeness attained by the noted sculptor, F. W. Allen of Boston.

It is interesting to know that George Barker Eustis of Minneapolis, Minn., the last surviving son of Charles Lyman Eustis, arrived here a few days ago to view the memorial. He is visiting his nephew, J. P. Eustis, at The Birches, in Eustis.

This is an abstract from a large article in the Lewiston Journal of April 27, 1968, Lewiston, Maine; entitled:

MEXICO CELEBRATES 150th BIRTHDAY

Mexico is across the Androscoggin River from Rumford falls and includes beautiful Half Moon Lake. The article states that the land was originally called Holmanstown because it formerly belonged to Col. Jonathan Holman. Among the pioneer settlers were brothers Thomas Eustis and Joseph Eustis who, with five other settlers, founded the town in 1818. They petitioned the legislature in Boston for incorporation under the name of Mexico, because of their admiration of the struggle for freedom in the Central American area called Mexico, which had ended in 1815.

It is stated in the newspaper article that seven families, including those of Thomas and Joseph Eustis, petitioned that they be exempted from taxes or permitted to work them on the road, stating that they are "unable to keep more than one cow and one swine per family" and that they "have been taxed $11.35 per year and they are unable to pay such a sum." On March 23, 1818 Joseph Eustis was named assessor of Mexico by the town meeting.

Mexico is about six miles from Dixfield, where Thomas later moved from Mexico.

Several members of the Eustis family subsequently lived in Dixfield for at least a part of their lives, or close by towns, such as Lang Plantation. MEMORIES OF JOHN TAPPAN EUSTIS -- by Warner Eustis
(As of December 30, 1953)

I first remember Grandpa Eustis as an old gentleman residing at 47 Central Avenue, Newtonville, where he rented a house after retiring as a partner of the Emery Waterhouse Company, dealers in hardware and mill supplies, in Portland, Maine.

As I heard the story about Grandpa Eustis, he was born in Dixfield, Maine, the son of Charles Lyman Eustis; and went to school at Bethel. In his early life he went to Burlington, Iowa, where he started in the hardware business with a man by the name of Peltz.

John Peltz Eustis was born in Burlington, Iowa. Shortly thereafter either there was a disagreement between Eustis and Peltz or, more likely, the undertaking failed, and John Tappan Eustis returned to Lewiston, Maine, where he was connected with an iron foundry which made cemetery fences. I later heard Grandma Eustis characterize these years in Lewiston, Maine, as the "seven years of famine!"

There is a story in the family that Grandpa Eustis was erecting a cemetery fence and young John Peltz Eustis was hanging around the job. Young John P. Eustis took a hammer and chipped a nearby gravestone, which caused Grandpa to buy a new gravestone for replacement. Grandma's remark was -- "John, aren't you glad you are not buying a gravestone for Johnnie?" This story will perhaps characterize the wit and diplomacy of Annie Eliza Towne Eustis, my grandmother.

At 47 Central Avenue, John T. Eustis lived near his son, John P. Eustis; and John P. Eustis (my father) went over every evening directly after supper to see Grandpa and Grandma. The families were back and forth -- Grandpa would come over Sunday night for fish hash made from dried hake which Mother bought on Atlantic Avenue, or perhaps for a plate of beans and brown bread.

I remember one day Grandpa came in through the front door and we pranced up to him with our hands full of chestnuts which we had picked in the woods. Grandpa had a paper bag in his hands and said -- "I've been nutting, too." We said -- "How many did you get? Let's see!" And he said -- "Oh, I got a dozen. Would you like to see?" When we peeked into the bag he had a dozen doughnuts!

One Sunday night he came over to the house and a short time after supper slumped in his chair, having had a shock. He was put to bed and remained several days at the house with nurses, etc., before we were able to transfer him back to his own home. Then Mother obtained from Vermont a Mrs. Ellis and her high school age daughter to take care of the family, since Grandpa was about 74, and Grandma close to that, too.

I can see Grandma and Mrs. Ellis making mince pies and Parker House rolls. I can see Grandpa sitting in the large leather chair, partially paralyzed on one side. I can see him call Mrs. Ellis, the housekeeper, and say to her -- "Bring me the gas pipe pliers." I can see him take the huge pliers and try to wind his watch, which he was unable to do with his partially paralyzed fingers. And last of all, I can remember Father taking the watch to the jeweler -- much amused.

Grandpa was a very abstemious man -- I was never conscious of any liquor in the household until after he had the shock, at which time he insisted on having a small drink before dinner. Dr. Talbot who attended him in Newtonville thought this was very bad for his health. Dr. Talbot and Father had a very serious discussion on the subject and Dr. Talbot was dismissed in favor of Dr. Baker, who had a more indulgent attitude towards one drink before dinner for a man with Grandpa's short prospects of life.

Now, Grandpa had a horse named Robin, and a carryall for four. He loved to drive the horse and would, every day, take Grandma for a ride in the carryall. Mrs. Ellis being a Vermonter was accustomed to horses, so she sat in the front seat, perchance a strong hand was required; and Grandma sat behind, wrapped in blankets, and wearing a bonnet having violets on top. This was a carryall with fringe around the top.

At the end Robin was approaching twenty years of age and wasn't exactly skittish, so while Mother was inclined to worry that something awful might happen, Father thought that Mrs. Ellis and Grandpa would be able to handle the situation! Father turned out to be right until Grandpa had his last and final shock, which ended in a coma. He continued to drive the horse for a while in the afternoon on every good day.

There are many stories of Grandpa. Father had a large power boat. Gasoline was cheap, and down in Maine they took along a couple hundred gallons, for which Grandpa insisted he would like to pay. The bill was $15 and Father could see him fade in his enthusiasm as soon as the amount was mentioned, so Father paid the $15.00.

In personal appearance Grandpa was very good looking -- slim, not heavy, with a quick step; and every Sunday morning he was nattily dressed in his cutaway, velvet collared coat, silver-topped cane and derby hat, ready for church with Grandma, who was similarly slim, but very thin in her later years.

I never heard Grandpa use any profanity. I always classed him as generous, but very careful and frugal. I think he left an estate of about $35,000 -- which was a large amount in those days for a countryman from Maine.

Mr. Emery of Emery Waterhouse Company was a very aggressive and important citizen of Maine. He was one of the organizers of the Rumford Falls Paper Company, and I believe that Grandpa was either secretary or treasurer of the Rumford Falls Paper Company for a number of years, and may have held an interest in that company, as well as in the Emery Waterhouse Company. I have never seen the investment list of my grandfather, although it might be found in the Probate Court records, but I think he had an interest, which was important to him, in United States Steel Preferred.

Grandma lived only a short time after Grandpa, and Grandpa's dying thoughts lead me to tell of another of his characteristics. Although he was thin, he liked good food, and was particularly fond of bacon and eggs. I remember with emotion his last hours of delirium which preceded the coma, -- in which he would at frequent intervals ask for bacon.

And the reader will ask -- what became of Robin the horse? He went to one of the sons, Edward Lyman Eustis, who was the minister of the Episcopal Church in Nantucket. Robin spent his last days in Nantucket and died there, a dumb animal,

William Tracy Eustis, a Boston business man residing in Brookline, just two hundred and fifty feet beyond the Boston line, is a native of Boston, and heir to the blood and traditions of six generations of Bostonians his ancestral tree having begun to spread its branches in the old Puritan town upwards of one hundred and sixty years before he was born. The date of his birth, September 29, 1822, shows him to be seven months and seven days younger than the city charter. Son of Joseph and Eleanor St. Barbe (Tracy) Eustis, he is a descendant in the seventh generation of William Eustis, whose name first appears in the Boston records as father of John b. MEMORIES OF ALBERT S. EUSTIS -- by Warner Eustis
(As of December 30, 1953)

I remember Albert S. Eustis with great reverence and considerable warmth. About 1905, Albert S. Eustis and his wife were living with their daughter, Mrs. James W. Eustis and her husband, at 25 Arlington Street, Cambridge, Mass.

John P. Eustis and family went to 25 Arlington Street for Christmas. There was a billard room on the third floor of the house and there we had a Christmas tree and all the Eustis clan congregated, including Eleanor Eustis (later Mrs. Farrington), Warner and Grant B. Eustis -- who were the only youngsters present. We had dinner and then a Christmas tree. Eleanor was born on Christmas Day so she had her birthday in the morning, which caused considerable complication.

A. S. Eustis, who was a finely built and finely featured person -- as was his wife, also -- was there with his quiet, friendly interest in what was going on. As youngsters we looked on him as being the rich uncle, since Father Eustis and James W. Eustis were in their early business periods.

A. S. Eustis was also born in Dixfield, Maine, and memory tells me that he operated a business involving the purchase and sale of potatoes and starch, at Colebrook, New Hampshire. He later moved to South Boston, believing that Boston was a better location in which to carry on such a business. Associated with him was a young man by the name of Burt Pennock, and after a while the business in Boston acquired the name of Eustis & Pennock Company.

While in his early years James W. Eustis was not connected with Eustis & Pennock Company, he later entered this concern and on the death of A. S. Eustis, James W. Eustis became the Eustis of Eustis & Pennock Company.

About 1929, James W. Eustis, not being in very good health, sold out his interest in Eustis & Pennock to Mr. Pennock and this closed the association of the Eustis family with the starch and potato activities of Albert S. Eustis.

I remember having heard my father say that somehow Albert S. Eustis found out that the Fourth National Bank of Boston was in difficulty and he was able to jump at that opportunity to help the bank and to make himself the principal or a principal stockholder. The bank was saved and later became merged in the Fourth Atlantic National Bank. I think Albert S. Eustis lived to see the merger of the Fourth National Bank into the Atlantic National, but he did not live to see the failure of his great pride in the great bank crisis of 1930, in which the too heavily expanded bank went down at great cost to its stockholders, of whom his daughter, Mrs. James W. Eustis, was one who had acquired a large interest through the death of A. S. Eustis.

In his later days I picture A. S. Eustis being very busy on all sorts of chores outside the house. Evidently outdoor work and garden work were things which had been a part of him since boyhood in northern New Hampshire. I have many memories of him raking leaves, shoveling snow, sweeping sidewalks and tidying up about the house. Of his later years and of his death I remember little except that he was buried in Mt. Auburn Cemetery, and that I went to the service.

My respect for this man was expressed in a boyish move which later was, of necessity, to be abandoned. I called myself Albert W. Eustis and for a long time signed my name in that way, although, of course, it was not a proper or legal signature.

Perhaps in talking about Albert S. Eustis it would be well to mention his wife, Eveline. I remember her as a stately lady, always dignified, well poised, but in the days of my memory I fear that I did not know her in fully normal mental state, because progressive hardening of the arteries caused her to become more and more difficult as she became less and less cogent.

Board of Directors
International House
New Orleans, Louisiana

Dear Sirs:

I believe our city's anniversary year would be a good time to establish a Franco-American Award to commemorate our historic ties with France, and to inspire people in our two countries to continue on a high level, cultural and economic exchanges on a people-to-people basis. During the year we will celebrate our city's founding by the French and since our European heritage is still the most important social and cultural influence in our area, it would seem most appropriate to stress our common interests, economic interdependence, and our understanding of mutual problems. Our appreciation of the Western way of life and the freedoms we both enjoy do not depend on and are not influenced by possible political differences that are of temporary nature and are, at times, inevitable in the family of nations even if they are as close to each other by tradition as are the French and the Americans.

Based on this philosophy, it is my intention to establish an annual award to be known as "The James Biddle Eustis Award" to be presented to a recognized leader in America who in his private or public capacity has rendered outstanding service and achieved success toward better social, educational, economic or cultural understanding and cooperation between the peoples of France and the United States. It is my intention to have the Award given to a French citizen one year and to an American the next, thus alternating the recipient.

If the Board of Directors of International House agrees with my purpose and feels that the Award would further serve the interest of the organization, I would like to ask that they undertake the selection of the recipient each year and also carry out the formalities of announcing and presenting the Award.

The Award is to be named after the first American Ambassador to France who during the presidency of Grover Cleveland was selected as a prominent New Orleanian to upgrade our already intimate relations with the French Republic in 1893, and who throughout many years served his nation brilliantly in Paris and in Washington, establishing a historic role for himself and for his successors in the eyes of the French.

It is also noteworthy that the United States Deputy Undersecretary of State, Honorable Charles Eustis Bohlen, a grandson of the first Ambassador, James Siddle Eustis, was our Ambassador to Paris during the past five years and also has intimate family connection with New Orleans.

I hope that the Board of Directors will find this plan in line with the overall work of International House which has done so much in the past in the field of Franco-American relations.

Sincerely,

LAURANCE EUSTIS

LE/sm

EUSTACE, the name of four counts of Boulogne.

EUSTACE I (d. 1046-1047), who became count in 1023 or 1027, was a son of Arnulf I (d. c. 993) and a great-grandson of Baldwin II, count of Flanders (d. 918).

His son EUSTACE II (d. c. 1087) was the husband of Goda (d. before 1036), daughter of the English king Aethelred II the Unready and sister of Edward the Confessor. When Eustace visited England (1051) a brawl between his retinue and the men of Dover provoked a serious quarrel between King Edward and Godwin, whose refusal, as earl of Wessex, to punish the town by a harrying expedition, led to his exile (1051-52). Eustace accompanied William, duke of Normandy (afterward William I), to England (1066) and fought at the battle of Hastings. Possibly dissatisfied with his share of English territory, he crossed to England again (1067) and led a rebellion in Kent; but his attack on Dover castle was repelled by the garrison. He was later reconciled with William. By his second wife, Ida of Lower Lorraine, Eustace became the father of Eustace III and of the crusaders Godfrey of Bouillon and Baldwin I, count of Edessa and first king of Jerusalem.

EUSTACE III (d. after 1125) supported Robert II (Curthose), duke of Normandy, in his attempt (1088) to wrest the English crown from his brother William II. He accompanied Robert on the 1st crusade (1096), returning home late in 1100. On the death of his brother Baldwin (1118), he was elected king of Jerusalem by the crusaders there, but he had only reached Italy when he heard that his nephew Baldwin II had been put forward in his place. He retired to the Cluniac priory of St. Peter at Rumilly in the Boulonnais in 1125, leaving his county of Boulogne to his daughter Matilda and her husband Stephen of Blois, afterward king of England.

EUSTACE IV (d. 1153), their son, was given the county of Boulogne in 1150. He did homage for Normandy (1137) to Louis VII, king of France, whose sister Constance he later married (1140), and he was several times used by the king as an opponent to the claims on the duchy made by the counts of Anjou. At a council held in London on April 6, 1152, King Stephen induced a small number of the English barons to do homage to Eustace as their future king; but Theobald, archbishop of Canterbury, refused to crown him. Eustace died on about Aug. 17, 1153, while engaged in plundering the lands of the abbey of Bury St. Edmunds. His death made possible a peaceful settlement between Henry of Anjou (afterward Henry II) and Stephen, who made no attempt to designate the throne to his younger son, William, earl of Surrey.

EUSTIS-EUSTACE - THE NORMAN CONQUEST

In the National Geographic Magazine - August 1966 - pages 206-249, the reader can find a magnificent story, illustrated in color and commemorating the 900th anniversary of the Battle of Hastings in 1066 A. D. This article shows in a series of color plates the so-called Bayeux tapestry with William of Normandy and Eustace - Earl of Boulogne whom it is recorded in history received large holdings of land from King William and brought the name of Eustis into England and eventually into Ireland also.

One illustration showing William and Eustace at the battle follows this comment together with a limited portion of the magazine article prepared by Kenneth M. Setton Ph. D. , Litt. D. of the University of Wisconsin.

"Look at me well ! I am still alive and by the grace of God I shall yet prove victor !"

His harsh voice rising above the din of battle, William pushes back his helmet and bares his face to retreating troops who thought him slain. "Inflamed by his ardour," exults the warrior's chronicler, William of Poitiers, "the Normans then surrounded ... their pursuers and rapidly cut them down so that not one escaped. "

This episode marked the turning point of a blood-splashed October day just 900 years ago — a day which so changed the course of events that it is impossible to reckon our history without those few furious hours. For when darkness fell on Senlac Hill, near the seaside town of Hastings on the southeast coast of England, William, Duke of Normandy, had earned the lasting sobriquet of "Conqueror. " And a flow of concepts began that would influence men's lives for centuries to come.

His victory at the Battle of Hastings made England once more a part of Europe, as it had not been since the better days of the Roman Empire. His influence on England began to give way to the political and cultural ideas of the Latin world.

Besides feudalism and a new aristocracy, the Normans implanted in England much of their language, law, architecture, and social customs. The island kingdom was thus brought into the mainstream of medieval civilization. Englishmen participated in the Crusades, the reform of church and monastery, and other movements of the time.

Ultimately the effects of his conquest would be felt in the New World. Such terms as "justice," "liberty," and "sovereign" crossed the Channel with William. Indeed, the Norman Conquest has left its mark forever on the language you are now reading.

For nearly nine centuries the Bayeux Tapestry has preserved the glory of the Norman Conquest of England. Now the full Tapestry stretches before you - a magic carpet for a journey back to the stirring days of the Conquest.

The mammoth piece of embroidery, stitched with colored wools on a linen background, was long attributed to Queen Matilda, William's wife. In fact, it was probably commissioned by Bishop Odo of Bayeux, William's half brother, for display in the Cathedral of Bayeux, consecrated only 11 years after the Battle of Hastings.

The first specific mention of the Tapestry comes in a 1476 inventory of the Cathedral of Bayeux. In 1792 French revolutionaries used it as a wagon cover until a local lawyer rescued it. Two years later it was almost cut up to decorate a holiday float. It spent a part of World War II in Paris, wound on a huge spool in a cellar of the Louvre.

Today the former Bishop's Palace across from the Cathedral of Bayeux displays the embroidery, protected by glass and special lighting.

Dear Sir,

I thank you for your letter of 27 April and shall be pleased to assist you in your search for genealogies of Eustis or early variations of the name, Eustace etc:

It should be understood that there are several different and unrelated families of Eustis with different Coats-of-Arms and Crests. Thus the "general background" for which you ask — that is to say an account of all the families of the name — has never been published.

If you could tell me to which family of Eustis you belong I may be able to assist. You are right in not requiring to "pry back into the distant details" as the only ^{family}~~one~~ which matters to you is your own.

Perhaps you descend from William Eustis of Rumney Marsh (now Chelsea) who died 27 November 1694 ? He was the ancestor of several Eustis families in

While it is correct that Eustis II did marry Goda, sister of Edward the Confessor, and there were no issue by that marriage, however, Eustis did later marry Ida of Lower Lorraine, thus Eustis became the father of Eustis III

~~THE EUSTIS FAMILY.~~ The Eustis family is of Norman origin, and derives its descent from Eustace, Earl of Boulogne, who m. for his first wife Goda, sister of Edward the Confessor. His second wife was Ida, sister of Godfrey Duke of Lorraine, who, after her husband's death, which occurred A.D. 1080, restored the church of St. Vulmar, near Boulogne, and furnished it with books and ornaments. They had two sons. Godfrey, the younger, Count of Boulogne and Duke of Lower Lorraine, in 1089, went to the first crusade, in 1096, and d. in 1100. The elder brother Earl Eustace, accompanied William, Duke of Normandy, into England in 1066, and had large grants of land in various parts of the country. His name appears on the roll of Battle Abbey, and in Doomsday Book, which was compiled in 1086, where his estates are described after the following manner:-

"In the hundred of Tandridge, in the county of Surrey, Earl Eustace holds Acstead (Oxstead). Goda the mother of Harold, held it in the time of King Edward. It was then assessed for twenty hides, now for five hides. The land is for twenty ploughs. There are two mills of twelve shillings and six pence four acres of meadow. Wood for pannage of a hundred hogs; and in Sudawene (Southwark) one messuage of two pence and six serfs, and nine bordars. There is a church." Other lands of the same earl in Wachelestedde (Walkingstedd) Sudawena, Londonia (London) and elsewhere, are described in similar terms. Earl Eustace had a son, Earl Eustace, who married Mary, daughter of Malcolm, King of Scotland, by whom he had a daughter Maude (who became the wife of Stephen, King of England) and a son John.

John Fitz Eustace, in the reign of Henry 11., A.D. 1159, accompanied Strongbow to Ireland, and was appointed Governor of Kildare. His descendant, Sir Edward Eustace, Lord of Kildare, and Lord Deputy of Ireland, had two sons: Rowland, his heir; and Robert, whose eldest son, Thomas, succeeded to the title and estates of his uncle, and whose younger son William resided in England. Sir Rowland Eustace, Knight of Harristown, was appointed Lord Treasurer of Ireland by patent dated May 23rd, 1454. He had a grant of the manor of Portlester by patent of the same date. He d. Dec. 19th, 1493, and was buried in the abbey of Baltinglass, which he had founded. He was twice m. but leaving no male issue, was succeeded by his nephew, Sir Thomas Eustace.

Sir Thomas Eustace, above named was created Baron of Kilcullen in the county of Kildare by patent dated September 18, 1541, and Viscount Baltindlass Jan. 29, 1542. He m. Margaret, daughter of Peter Talbot, of Malahide, and, dying July 31, 1548, was succeeded by his eldest son, Sir Rowland Eustace, b. in 1505, second Viscount Baltinglass, Baron Portlester and Kilcullen. The latter married Joan, daughter of James Butler, Lord Dunbogue.

James Eustace, son of Sir Rowland and third Viscount Baltinglass, having rebelled against the authority of Queen Elizabeth, in 1583, was attainted with his brothers, and his titles and estates became forfeited.

John Fitz Eustace, of a younger branch of the ancient family of Earl Eustace, derived from his ancestors estates in the counties of Buckingham and Oxford, and in the fifteenth year of Edward 1., A.D. 1235, was seated at Shenby in Buckinghamshire. His son John, who dropped the prefix to the family name, and wrote his name John Eustace, removed to Aston Clinton, and augmented his possessions by purchase from John de Petham in the reign of Edward 111., A.D. 1343. These lands comprised manors in Tring, Aldbury, and Wiginton, in Buckinghamshire, and in Sydenham in the county of Oxford. At what period the family fixed their residence in Oxfordshire does not appear; but in the early part of the sixteenth century John Eustace, from whom an unbroken line of descent is traced to the American branch, was established at Sydenham, and his name appears upon the subsidy rolls of that county in the twenty-ninth year of the reign of Henry VIII., when he was assessed on his lands and goods in Sydenham and Watlington to the requirements of that King.

His son, Robert Eustace, paid assessments for property in Sydenham in 1558, and soon after removed to Watlington, in which and in neighboring parishes he possessed considerable landed estates. Robert had four sons: (1) Jeremy, d. May 1, 1587 unmarried, and was buried in the south aisle of Watlington church, under a flagstone with an inscription and effigy in brass, the inscription reading: "Here lyeth buried the body of Jerom Eustis, the eldest son of Robert Eustis, late of the town of Watlington, who gave ye trebill Bell that hangeth now in the Steppell—he deceased the first day of May, 1587. Also here lyeth buried John Eustis, brother of said Jerom who deceased the last day of May 1588." (2) John, of Watlington, d. May 31, 1588 and was buried in the church near his brother Jeremy, leaving a widow Elizabeth, daughter of Roger Gregory, but no children. His will, dated May 28, 1588 was proved July 17, 1588. He appointed his brother executor, and made him residuary legatee. (3) Thomas, of Pirton. (4) Henry, of Bedlington.

Thomas Eustace (Thomas of Pirton) third son of Robert Eustace, of Watlington, resided in the neighboring parish of Pirton, where he was possessed of landed property and was patron of the church living. He was buried in the church, February 15, 1614-5, having made his will on the 15th of the preceding April, which was proved on the 4th of April, 1615. He desires to be buried in the church near his mother, and makes bequests to the poor of Watlington and Pirton. He gives his son Robert his house at Watlington, and the titles of his parsonage of Pirton. He also makes bequests to his other children and to his relatives at Bledlow, in Buckinghamshire. An inquisition was held after his death to determine the tenure of his estates and if held capite, when it was stated that his son Thomas was heir, aged twenty-four years at the time of the father's death. His widow, Margery, made her will on March 12, 1639-40 in which she desires to be buried in the church near her husband. Their children were (1) Thomas, b. in 1591, who besides a daughter, Margery had a son Robert, who d. in 1624. (2) Robert of Pirton, to whom his father gave a house at Watlington and the titles of the parsonage at Pirton. By his wife Margery, he had, besides six daughters, a son Robert. This son dying unmarried, his uncle, John Eustace, succeeded to the estates. (3) John of Pirton, executor of his mother's will, succeeded to the estates on the death of his nephew Robert without issue. His first wife was Dorothy Duffield, whom he m. at Pirton February 11, 1620-1 and who was buried on the 29th of the following June. By his second wife, Mary, he had (1) John, baptized April 4 and buried April 9, 1325. (2) Martha, baptized Feb. 7, 1323-7. (3) Thomas, baptized April 22, 1329. (4) John, baptized Jan. 31, 1330-3, and (5) Margery, baptized Dec. 23, 1323.

Thos. Eustace, the oldest surviving son and heir of John Eustace, of Pirton resided on the family estates at Pirton, and was buried on October 7, 1334. A chasm occurs in the parish registers between the 1358 and 1368 during which time his son Thomas was b. and who was buried on April 3, 1701. The latter's son Thomas, baptized December 3, 1684, d. in 1701 and was buried in the south porch of the church, under a large flat stone, with three arms and inscriptions; - "Here lyeth ye body of Thomas Eustace Gent who dyed May ye 22, 1713. Aged 29 years, Also Mary ye wif of Thomas Eustace who dyed Jan. ye 22, 1722, Aged 23 years."

Henry Eustace, fourth son of Robert Eustace of Watlington, fixed his residence at Bledlow in Buckinghamshire, where he possessed landed property, which he and his successors considerably augmented by purchase. He was a principal resident of Bledlow, and entered largely into the management of the parish affairs. His will is dated May 12, 1343, and was proved on June 7, 1347. He desires to be buried in the church of Bledlow, where, in the south wall, is a tablet to the memory of several members of his family. He makes bequests to his wife, children and grandchildren, and to several other relatives and friends. He was twice m. but by his second wife, Phillis, who survived him, he had no children. His first wife was Margaret, who was buried October 23, 1302. Their children were (1) Henry, who was buried Jan. 20, 1305-06, leaving an only son Henry, baptized June 30, 1305, who m. Jan. 20, 1329-30, Ann, daughter of Wm. Sale. His will, dated June 24, 1373, was proved on October 30, same year. He had two sons and five daughters. Henry, the eldest son, d. before his father, leaving sons, Henry and William; and John, the youngest son, d. at Bledlow in 1398, leaving four sons. His will is dated October 23, 1398. (2) Thomas, of Bledlow, m. December 1, 1303, Anne Bedgingham, by whom he had two sons, Thomas and John, both of whom died unmarried. His will, dated September 4, 1351 and proved on November 10 following, bequeaths to his nephew John, son of his brother Joseph, deceased, his dwelling house at Bledlow, he paying to his brother in New England, twenty pounds, if he returns to receive it. (3) Joseph Eustace, third son of Henry Eustace, of Bledlow, was also a resident of that place. He was born probably about the year 1590, but, the parish registers of a date prior to 1592 not having been preserved, there exists no record of his baptism. His name frequently occurs in the parish books as holding various public offices. In 1342 he was church warden with Wm. Sale, and it was during their term of office, and under their direction, that the ancient church was thoroughly restored and renovated, the work being so well executed that nothing of importance has been done to it since. He was buried in the church on July 23, 1343. The name of his wife has not been ascertained, but the baptisms of his six children are all recorded in the parish register of Bledlow, as follows;— Anne baptized Jan. 9, 1324-5 : William, baptized April 20, 1327, buried July 10, 1329; Alice, baptized April 1, 1330; John, of Bledlow, baptized March 23, 1332 (by his wife Anne, John had Joseph, John, Anne, Henry, Thomas, Sarah, William, Samuel, Benjamin and Anne), William, baptized February 23, 1335-6, and Mary, baptized March 3 1339. (4) William, of Bledlow, fourth son of Henry Eustace, had children; Thomas, baptized September 13, 1323; John, baptized October 30, 1329; Henry, baptized May 3, 1332; Simon, baptized October 3 1334, Joseph, baptized October 10, 1333, Mary, baptized March 3, 1339. (5) Anne m. William Moore of Bledlow, gent., by whom she had four sons and a daughter. (6) Eleanor m. a Mr. Gilman, by whom she had two sons and a daughter. (7) Phillis was wife of Robert Stephens, by whom she had six children. (8) Catherine m. a Mr. Mead, by whom she had a son and daughter. (9) Mary was buried Jan. 31, 1309-10. (10) Margery, baptized July 29, 1593, was buried June 17, 1303.

William^① Eustace, fifth child and second surviving son of Joseph Eustace of Bladlow, has his baptism thus recorded: "1635-3 Gulielmus filius Joseph Ewstes Febr. 13th." COMMENTS ON "BLADLOW", ENGLAND

This is reported as the birthplace of Gulielmus filius Joseph Eustes on February 16 of 1635-36. (Reported by William Tracy Eustis thru work done by Henry Lawrence Eustis) whom it will be seen is cautious about this information, if he had it at the time of his publication in 1876. In any case, he did not report it then and adhered to the earliest U. S. record of a birth of a child named Eustis (not Eustes or Eustace) at Rumney Marsh in 1674.

I cannot find Bladlow in Rand McNally - World Atlas nor in the Encyclopedia Britannica. Also, I do not find Bladlow in Newme's Gazetteer of England which gives small places in great detail, nor in the A. A. Road Book which covers historic places with care. It pleases my imagination, even though I have no justification, to believe that the place is Bladon - Oxfordshire where there now lies Lord Winston Churchill and his Father and Mother, Lord and Lady Randolph Churchill. This is at least a town where William might have learned much by association with both the palace and the town before he left for Massachusetts. Perhaps I am hereby starting another pleasant myth.

He studied law, but relinquished practice to enter the army. He served in the War of 1812, in the Black Hawk War, 1832, and in the war with the Seminoles, in Florida. For many years, he was in command of the school for artillery practice at Fortress Munroe Old Point Comfort, Va. At the time of his death, he was Colonel of the First Artillery and Brevet Brigadier General with headquarters at Portland, Maine. His death was the occasion of the following order;—

General Orders
No. 41.

Headquarters of the Army
Adjutant General's Office,
Washington, June 30, 1843.

The General in Chief, in deep sorrow, announces to the army that official intelligence is just received of the death of a distinguished brother officer, Brevet Brigadier General Abraham Eustis; which melancholy event occurred at Portland, in Maine, on the morning of the 27th inst.

The deceased entered the army, a Captain of Light Artillery, in 1808 in the expectation of the war that was not declared till four years later. In the interval, he made himself a master of his profession, served in that war with honor, and has since borne an important part in many expeditions of difficulty and enterprise, including several recent campaigns in Florida.

In a career of thirty-five years, he uniformly exhibited vigor in command, combined with high intelligence and impartiality, and in all relations public and private, the sternest and most spotless integrity. No man's word or motives could have been more universally respected.

The army has lost a distinguished light and ornament, the country one of its most patriotic and gallant defenders.

As appropriate honors to the memory of the deceased, the posts of the sixth Military Department, late under his command, will fire minute-guns (eleven) and display the national flag at half-mast till sundown, the day after this order shall be received by the respective commanders, both honors commencing at 12 o'clock M. In addition, the officers of the same department will wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

By command of Major General Scott.

R. Jones, Adjt. Gen.

General Scott also sent his personal regrets and condolences to a relative of the deceased; and General Eustis' brother officers, at a meeting held soon after his death at Hancock, Me. adopted resolutions expressive of their great respect and admiration of him, and offering condolences to his bereaved family.

The following letter also, from General Sherman, indicates that General Eustis' name was well known to and appreciated by some of the most eminent members of his profession of a later generation.

"Headquarters Army of the U.S.

Col. J. de V. Hazard, Lake Eustis, Florida. Washington, D.C. Feb. 10, 1881.

Dear Col:- I hope that, in the ardor of your Union feelings, you will not change the name of Lake Eustis. It was named after General Abram Eustis, who was a patriotic, able officer, as far back as the War of 1812. He served with distinction in the Florida War, when he doubtless gave his name to the lake in question and died June 23, 1843, long before a Civil War was dreamed of. He had two sons in the army, William and Henry L. I think William is dead, at all events, he resigned in 1849 and Henry L. is now a professor of mathematics at Cambridge, Mass. There is a family of the same name in Louisiana who were doubtless rebels in the war, one of whom has been U.S. Senator since: but the General Eustis after whom the lake was named never was a rebel: and, from his reputation when I served in Florida, 1840-41, never would have been, had he lived up to 1861. I am glad you wrote to me, else you and your neighbors might have made a mistake.

With great respect,

W.F. Sherman, General?

At the age of fifteen he entered Harvard College, and graduated with honors, being assigned an oration as his part at commencement. He immediately entered the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, where he speedily took the highest rank, and while still a cadet was employed as assistant instructor. He graduated at the head of his class, and, in virtue of his scholarship entered the engineer corps receiving his commission as 2nd Lieut. in 1842, and entering upon his duties as assistant to the chief of engineers at Washington. In the summer of 1843, he was ordered to Boston as assistant to Colonel Thayer, and served as assistant engineer in the construction of the sea wall at Lovell's Island. From 1845 to 1847, he was engineer in charge of the works for the improvement of Newport Harbor. Then, until November 1849, he was assistant professor of engineering at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. This position he resigned to accept the professorship of engineering in the Lawrence Scientific School, which had recently been founded. In 1861, he spent eight months travelling in Europe for the benefit of his health. The war of the rebellion broke out during his absence, and soon after his return, early in March 1862, he was awakened one night, some hours after retiring to sleep, by the violent ringing of his door bell. His untimely visitors proved to be Governor Andrew and others, who had come to tell him of the success of the Confederate ram "Merrimac" and to ask his advice, as an officer of engineers, as to the necessity of preparing Boston for the approach of this apparently invincible ironclad. Soon after this, he offered his services to the Governor, and was commissioned Col. of the 10th Mass. Vol. Aug. 15, 1862. His regiment served with the Army of the Potomac in the Maryland campaign from September to November 1862, being engaged at Williamsport, guarding the upper Potomac fords.

and in the march to Falmouth, Va. also in the Rappahannock campaign from December 1862 to June 1863, being engaged in operations at the battle of Fredericksburg the storming of Mary's Height, and the battle of Salem; also the passage of the Rappahannock in the Pennsylvania campaign, June and July 1863, being engaged, after a forced march of thirty-five miles, in the battle of Gettysburg and in the pursuit of the enemy to Warrenton, Va. Colonel Eustis was appointed Brigadier General Sept. 12, 1864, and as such, took part in the operations in Central Virginia from November 1863 to March 1864, being engaged in the combat at Rappahannock Station, Mile Run and in the march toward Charlottesville and back. Also in the Richmond campaign, taking part in the battle of the Wilderness and the battles around Spottsylvania and Cold Harbor, under Grant.

General Eustis resigned his command June 27, 1864, and resumed his duties in the scientific school with the academic year 1864-65. At this post he remained until his death, there being but six in the active service of the University whose names, arranged in order of college seniority preceded his in the roll of the officers of instruction and government. He d. at his residence in Cambridge, on Sunday morning January 11, 1885, having known for some time that his end was near at hand. He had continued his duties as long as possible, unwilling to relinquish his classes, and when unable to ride the short distance to school, had his pupils come to him. He was greatly lamented by all who knew him. As an instructor he had few equals. Perhaps we can close this brief sketch of his career in no better way than by quoting the words of a friend and associate, W.P.P. Longfellow, "In spite of the magnetism of circumstances which drew him back again and again into the circle of army life, the military life itself was never attractive to him. The attraction which took him to West Point as a cadet was not the military character of the school, but his bent for the study of engineering. It is not likely that he would have gone there if he had not counted on graduating into the engineer corps. The homelessness of his boyhood and early manhood, instead of leading to Bohemianism, seems to have engendered an intense desire for a settled life and the tranquillity of a home. Frontier life, in which so many of our officers have passed a large part of their service would have been intolerable to him. One of the early letters, written during his cadetship, shows him looking forward rather gloomily to a long and eventless service in the army, and contrasting it with the studious charm of a professor's career."

"And with the qualities of the successful student, Professor Eustis had all the natural gifts of the teacher, quickened by his long and thorough training." All his knowledge lay in order in his mind, and was ready for instant use. Not only the matter of the lesson before him, but the whole of the related subject was present to him, for comparison, illustration, enforcement. So his teaching had never the hand-to-mouth fragmentary character which is common to much instruction in scientific matters, to the undoing of the student's sense of breadth. What he said at one time did not need to be modified or readjusted at another, to suit new connections. His power of clear, compact, logically coherent statement was a revelation to the pupil who came to him from sitting under an average teacher. No one knew better what to insist upon and what to keep subordinate. With the same keenness with which he saw into his subject, he saw into his pupil's mind, and established with him an intellectual sympathy, which was half the secret of his power as a teacher. Once sure of his pupil's intelligent attention and effort, there was no end to the patience and fulness of explanation with which he followed him through his task. The student found the cobwebs swept from his brain with surprising thoroughness. If he did not end by liking and understanding his lesson, it was because he was exceptionally dull or indifferent or perverse."

To his friends, Professor Eustis' qualities of disposition and heart were as notable as his intelligence. Uncompromising uprightness and a soldierly straightforwardness of manner won the respect of those who met him on the footing of ordinary acquaintance. Although a tinge of reserve kept him from forming many close intimacies, he had in social intercourse a bonhomie that was very attractive. He was exceptionally fond of music, and this fondness opened to him the hearts of many of the students who did not officially come under his notice. He used to say that no music was pleasanter than a good quartette of male voices, and the student's glee clubs knew that at Professor Eustis' door at least their songs were always welcome. So it happened that while he stimulated the intellects of his students, he won their affections. Few teachers leave behind among their pupils so keen a sense of debt for intellectual benefits. Fewer still, perhaps, leave so much personal affection or so much feeling of personal loss at their death.

Professor Eustis was a member of the American Academy and of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He delivered occasionally public lectures on scientific subjects, and wrote some short treatises, among them a pamphlet on the composition and use of mortars in engineering construction, and a paper on a hurricane or tornado which passed over the neighborhood of Boston Aug. 27th, 1351.

Professor Eustis was first m. May 2, 1844 to Sarah Augusta, daughter of Thomas J. and Julia Ann (Jeffries) Eckley. She d. Jan. 10, 1853, aged thirty years. THE NAME AND FAMILY OF EUSTACE OR EUSTIS

The name of EUSTACE or EUSTIS, originally used as a baptismal or personal name, occurs in the English, French, Latin, and Greek languages and means "Fruitful". It was first taken as a patronymic by the sons of those so called and is found in ancient English and early American records in the various spellings of Ewstace, Ewstase, Eustase, Eustasy, Ewstes, Ewstis, Ewstiss, Eustes, Eustus, Eusties, Eustiss, Eustice, Eustis, and Eustace. Of these, the last two are still frequently in evidence in modern times.

According to some historians, the family of the name anciently seated in Ireland derives its origin from the Roman martyr, St. Eustachius, a descendant of whom passed into England in the time of the Saxon kings. Eustace, the founder of the line, inherited the northern parts of the Barony of Naas, together with the Barony of Kilcullen, in Ireland. In the year 1200 Richard Fitz (son of) Eustace was Baron of Castlemartin, and others of the family attained the title of Baron of Harristown and Portlester.

Sir Edward Fitz Eustace, Lord Deputy of Ireland in 1454, was the father of Sir Rowland Eustace, who was created Baron of Fortlester. Sir Rowland was later Lord Chancellor and Treasurer of Ireland. He appears in 1475 with his kinsman, Sir Robert Eustace, in the County of Kildare. James, Thomas, and Christopher Eustace, of the County of Kildare, Ireland, took part in the Geraldine Rebellion at a slightly later period. In 1580 Maurice, Thomas, and John Eustace, of this line, took part with the oppressed O'Tooles in the wars of the times.

Also of the Irish family was Edward Eustace, who held numerous lands in the County of Dublin in 1594; and Maurice Eustace, who served the Counties of Kildare and Dublin in the Irish House of Commons in 1639. This Maurice was appointed Lord Chancellor of Ireland in 1660 and was the father of at least one son, Sir Maurice Eustace.

Oliver Eustace, who was a Member of Parliament for the County of Carlow, Ireland, in 1639, was the father of Francis Eustace, living in 1675, who had a son of the same name. The last was the father of Oliver Eustace, who married Elinor Nugent and was the father by her of a son named Edward, who married Bridget Longfield in 1712. To this union were born seven children, James, Robert, William, Thomas, Maria, Anne, and Bridget Eustace, whose descendants are numerous.

The first records of the name in England include those of Adam filius (son of) Eustace, who was living in the County of Cambridge in 1273; Henry filius Eustace, of Huntingdonshire, in the same year; Richard Eustase, of Cambridgeshire, in 1273; William filius Eustachii, of County Norfolk, before 1300; and Lucia Eustasy, of Somersetshire, in 1327. At later dates are found the names of Robert Ewstace, who was registered at the University of Oxford in 1513; and of Mary and John Eustiss or Ewstes, who were living in London at a later period.

The first of the name in America was James Eustis, who settled in Virginia in the year 1635. However, nothing is definitely known concerning his immediate family or descendants.

Sometime before the year 1659 one William Eustace or Eustis settled at Rumney Marsh (now Chelsea), Mass. By his wife Sarah, who died at Charlestown, Mass., in 1713, William was the father of ten children, John, William, Joseph, Joshua (no further record), Benjamin (died at the age of twenty-four, probably without progeny), David, Jonathan, Elizabeth, Mary, and Sarah.

John, the eldest son of the immigrant William, first married Elizabeth Morse, who died in 1714, having had issue of Elizabeth; Sarah (died young), Hannah, Abigail, John (died young), Mary (died in infancy), Eliza, and another John.

John, the only surviving son of John and Elizabeth (née Morse), married Hannah Flood in 1723 and was the father by her of two sons, John and James. By his second wife, Rebecca Dodge, whom he married in 1732, he had further issue of Elizabeth, Abigail, Josiah, and Sarah.

William Eustis, the second son of the immigrant William, was married in 1688 to Sarah Cutler. To this union were born Benjamin, William, Sarah, Mary, Ruth, Hannah, Joseph, Thomas, Samuel (died early), and Nathaniel.

Of the last-mentioned brothers, sons of William and Sarah (née Cutler), Benjamin was the father by his wife, Katharine Ingersoll, whom he married in 1713, of Benjamin (died in infancy), George, and another Benjamin; William had issue by his first wife, Elizabeth Gardner, whom he married in 1714, of William, Elizabeth, and Samuel, all three of whom died in infancy, and by his second wife, Jane Read, had two sons, William and John, of whom the former died early; Joseph married Mary Scott in 1729 and was the father

Of the surviving sons of Jonathan and Sarah (née Scollay), James married Mary Townsend in 1739 and had issue by her of two daughters, Mary and Sarah, but had no male progeny; and Joshua left issue by his wife, Abihail Sprague, whom he married in 1757, of Joshua, Abihail, James, Jacob, and Joseph Sprague Eustis.

One John Eustace came from England to Virginia in 1676[?] and settled in Lancaster County. He first married Sarah Jauncey, by whom he was the father of William and John Eustace. By his second wife, Elizabeth, he had no further progeny.

Captain William Eustace, son of the immigrant John, married the Widow Anna (née Armistead) Lee. He died about 1739, leaving issue of John, William, Isaac, Elizabeth, Sarah, and Hancock Eustace (some of whose descendants may have used the Eustis form of the surname).

Among traits of the family which recur in many cases from generation to generation are a rather high type of intellectual capacity, personal charm, and a preference for academic or professional pursuits, although some of the name have been known for their practical business sense and their executive and legal abilities.

Among the bearers of the name who served with the Colonial forces during the American Revolution were Major and Aide-de-Camp John Skey Eustace, of Georgia; Captain John, Ensign John, William, William Jr., and George Eustace (sometimes recorded as Eustice), of Virginia; Abraham, Elisha, John, and Richard Eustis (sometimes Eustes), of Virginia; and Lieutenant Abraham, Major Benjamin, Chamberlin or Chamberlain, Ebenezer, Ebenezer L., Jacob, James, John, Sergeant Joseph, Nathaniel, Captain Samuel, and Surgeon William Eustis (also recorded as Eustus, Eustes, Eustice, and Eusties), of Massachusetts.

James, Edward, John, Thomas, Robert, William, Richard, Joseph, Benjamin, Samuel, George, David, Joshua, and Henry are some of the masculine Christian names preferred by the family for its male progeny.

Bearers of the name who have been prominent in America in comparatively recent years include the following:

Henry Lawrence Eustis (1819-1885), of Massachusetts, civil engineer.

George Eustis (1828-1872), of Louisiana, lawyer and Congressman.

James Biddle Eustis (1834-1899), of Louisiana and Rhode Island, soldier, lawyer, and United States Senator.

William Henry Eustis (b. 1845), of New York and Minnesota, lawyer and statesman.

Percy Sprague Eustis (b. 1857), of Massachusetts and Illinois, railroad manager.

Bartholomew Eustace (b. 1887), of New York, clergyman and editor.

Abraham Eustice (b. 1902), of Alabama, merchant and postmaster.

Cecil John Eustace (b. 1903), theologian.

Herbert Willoughby Eustace (twentieth century), of California, author and Christian scientist.

The coat of arms borne by the ancient Irish family of Eustace (later sometimes spelled Eustis) is described in heraldic terms as follows (Burke, Encyclopaedia of Heraldry, 1844):

Arms.--"Gules, a saltire or."

Crest.--"A stag's head cabossed, between the horns a crucifix, all proper."

Motto.--"Soli Deo gloria."

WHY YOU HAVE A FAMILY NAME AND WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU

Primitive personal names doubtless originated soon after the invention of spoken language, although the date of their first use is lost in the darkness of ages preceding recorded history. For thousands of years thereafter, first or given names were the only designations that men and women bore; and in the dawn of historic times, when the world was less crowded than it is today and every man knew his neighbor, one title of address was sufficient. Only gradually, with the passing centuries and the increasing complexity of civilized society, did a need arise for more specific designations. While the roots of our system of family names may be traced back to early civilized times, actually the hereditary surname as we know it today dates from a time scarcely earlier than nine hundred years ago.

A surname is a name added to a baptismal or Christian name for the purposes of making it more specific and of indicating family relationship or descent. Classified according to origin, most surnames fall into four general categories: (1) those formed from the given name of the sire; (2) those arising from bodily or personal characteristics; (3) those derived from locality or place of residence; and (4) those derived from occupation. It is easier to understand the story of the development of our institution of surnames if these classifications are borne in mind.

As early as biblical times certain distinguishing appellations were occasionally employed in addition to the given name, as, for instance, Joshua the son of Nun, Simon the son of Jonas, Judas of Galilee, and Simon the Zealot. In ancient Greece daughters were named after their fathers, as Chryseis, the daughter of Chryses; and sons' names were usually an enlarged form of the father's, as Hieronymus, son of Hiero. The Romans, with the rise of their civilization, met the need for hereditary designations by inventing a complex system whereby every patrician traced his descent by taking several names. None of them, however, exactly corresponded to surnames as we know them, for the "clan name", although hereditary, was given also to slaves and other dependents. This system proved to be but a temporary innovation; the overthrow of the Western Empire by barbarian invaders brought about its end and a reversion to the primitive custom of a single name.

The ancient Scandinavians and for the most part the Germans had only individual names, and there were no family names, strictly speaking, among the Celts. But as family and tribal groups grew in size, individual names became inadequate and the need for supplementary appellations began to be felt. Among the first employed were such terms as "the Strong", "the Hardy", "the Stern", "the Dreadful-in-battle"; and the nations of northern Europe soon adopted the practice of adding the father's name to the son's, as Oscar son of Carnuth and Dermid son of Duthno.

True surnames, in the sense of hereditary designations, date in England from about the year 1000. Largely they were introduced from Normandy, although there are records of Saxon surnames prior to the Norman Conquest. Perhaps the oldest known surname in England is that of Hwita Hatte, a keeper of bees, whose daughter was Tate Hatte. During the reign of Edward the Confessor (1042-1066) there were Saxon tenants in Suffolk bearing such names as Suert Magno, Stigand Soror, Siuward Rufus, and Leuric Hobbesune (Hobson); and the Domesday record of 1085-1086, which exhibits some curious combinations of Saxon forenames with Norman family names, shows surnames in still more general use.

By the end of the twelfth century hereditary names had become common in England. But even by 1465 they were not universal. During the reign of Edward V a law was passed to compel certain Irish outlaws to adopt surnames: "They shall take unto them a Surname, either of some Town, or some Colour, as Blacke or Brown, or some Art or Science, as Smyth or Carpenter, or some Office, as Cooke or Butler." And as late as the beginning of the nineteenth century a similar decree compelled Jews in Germany and Austria to add a German surname to the single names which they had previously used.

As stated above, family names may be divided into four general classes according to their origin. One of the largest of these classes is that comprising surnames derived from the given name of the father. Such names were formed by means of an added prefix or suffix denoting either "son of" or a diminutive. English names terminating in son, ing, and kin are of this type, as are also the innumerable names prefixed with the Gaelic Mac, the Norman Fitz, the Welsh ap, and the Irish O'. Thus John's sons became Johnsons; William's sons, Williamsons or Wilsons; Richard's sons, Richardsons or Richardses (the final "s" of "Richards" being a contraction of "son"); Neill's sons, MacNeills; Herbert's sons, FitzHerberts; Thomas's sons, ap Thomases (ap has been dropped from many names of which it was formerly a part); and Reilly's sons, O'Reillys.

Another class of surnames, those arising from some bodily or personal characteristic of their first bearer, apparently grew out of what were in the first instance nicknames. Thus Peter the strong became Peter Strong, Roger of small stature became Roger Little or Roger Small, and black-haired William or blond Alfred became William Black or Alfred White. From among the many names of this type, only a few need be mentioned: Long, Short, Hardy, Wise, Good, Gladman, Lover, and Youngman.

A third class of family names, and perhaps the largest of all, is that comprising local surnames--names derived from and originally designating the place of residence of the bearer. Such names were popular in France at an early date and were introduced into England by the Normans, many of whom were known by the titles of their estates. The surnames adopted by the nobility were mainly of this type, being used with the particles de, de la, or del (meaning "of" or "of the"). The Saxon equivalent was the word atte ("at the"), employed in such names as John atte Brook, Edmund atte Lane, Godwin atte Brigg, and William atte Bourne. A vestige of this usage survives in the names Atwell, Atwood, and Atwater; in other cases the Norman de was substituted; and in still others, such as Wood, Briggs, and Lane, the particle was dropped. The surnames of some of the Pilgrim Fathers illustrate place designations: for instance, Winthrop means "from the friendly village"; Endicott, "an end cottage"; Bradford, "at the broad ford"; and Standish, "a stony park". The suffixes "ford", "ham", "ley", and "ton", denoting locality, are of frequent occurrence in such names as Ashford, Bingham, Burley, and Norton.

While England enjoyed a period of comparative peace under Edward the Confessor, a fourth class of surnames arose--names derived from occupation. The earliest of these seem to have been official names, such as Bishop, Mayor, Fawcett (judge), Alderman, Reeve, Sheriff, Chamberlain, Chancellor, Chaplain, Deacon, Latimer (interpreter, Marshall, Sumner (summoner), and Parker (park-keeper). Trade and craft names, although of the same general type, were of somewhat later origin. Currier was a dresser of skins, Webster a weaver, Wainwright a wagonbuilder, and Baxter a baker. Such names as Smith, Taylor, Barber, Shepherd, Carter, Mason, and Miller are self-explanatory.

Many surnames of today which seem to defy classification or explanation are corruptions of ancient forms which have become disguised almost beyond recognition. Longfellow, for instance, was originally Longueville, Longshanks was Longchamps, Troublefield was Tuberville, Wrinch was Renshaw, Diggles was Douglas, and Snooks was Sevenoaks. Such corruptions of family names, resulting from ignorance of spelling, variations in pronunciation, or merely from the preference of the bearer, tend to baffle both the genealogist and the etymologist. Shakespeare's name is found in some twenty-seven different forms, and the majority of English and Anglo-American surnames have, in their history, appeared in four to a dozen or more variant spellings.

In America a greater variety of family names exists than anywhere else in the world. Surnames of every race and nation are represented. While the greater number are of English, Scotch, Irish, or Welsh origin, brought to this country by scions of families which had borne these names for generations prior to emigration, many others, from central and southern Europe and from the Slavic countries, where the use of surnames is generally a more recently established practice, present considerable difficulty to the student of etymology and family history.

Those Americans who possess old and honored names--who trace the history of their surnames back to sturdy immigrant ancestors, or even beyond, across the seas, and into the dim mists of antiquity--may be rightfully proud of their heritage. While the name, in its origin, may seem ingenious, humble, surprising, or matter-of-fact, its significance today lies not in a literal interpretation of its original meaning but in the many things that have happened to it since it first came into use. In the beginning it was only a word, a convenient label to distinguish one John from his neighbor John who lived across the field. But soon it established itself as a part of the bearer's individuality; and as it passed to his children, his children's children, and their children, it became the symbol not of one man but of a family and all that that family stood for. Handed down from generation to generation, it grew inseparably associated with the achievement, the tradition, and the prestige of the family. Like the coat of arms--that vivid symbolization of the name which warrior ancestors bore in battle--the name itself, borne through every event of a man's life and through the lives of scores of his progenitors, became the badge of family honor--the "good name" to be proud of, to protect, and to fight for if need be. As the worthy deeds of the marching generations have given it dignity and splendor, it has become an institution, a family rallying cry, and the most treasured possession of those who bear it.

DESCENDANTS OF WM. EUSTIS (6)

Continuation of Item #50 in the compilation of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis.

As a result of corresponding with Mrs. Alvin Allen Eustis, who at this date August 15, 1968, resides with her husband at 945 Euclid Avenue, Berkeley, California 94708, I have obtained certain interesting information, which I think is correct about William Eustis (6), who is recorded by Item #50 in the compilation of Prof. Henry Lawrence Eustis appearing in the front of this book. This information, she hoped, might establish the identity of her husband, Alvin Allen Eustis, but I have not yet seen that it does, although for reasons that are not clearly established he thinks his grandfather was the above William (6). However, I have not seen the connection. There is an Alvin DeMerit, who married a Mary Eustis, whom I believe to be the daughter of William (6) by his second wife. Also there is a Mrs. Henry C. Allen, whom I believe was Elizabeth (7), daughter of William (6). She was thrice married to John Barger, then to R. B. Hart, then to Henry C. Allen. Thus, although the names Alvin and Allen do appear in the descendants of William (6), there is no definite connection to Alvin Allen Eustis in California, whom I am thus obliged to put under my heading T, which covers persons of unknown origin. I hope Alvin Allen Eustis will later be able to find the definite connection, but I cannot wait longer before publication.

WILLIAM (6) EUSTIS (See Item #50 of Prof. H. L. Eustis)
William 5, John 4, William 3, William 2, William 1; b. May 4, 1799; d. Apr. 23, 1881 at Ft. Atkinson, Wisconsin; int. North Oakland cemetery; said to have lived at Lake Mills, Jefferson Co., Wisconsin and Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin.

Subsequent to printing this compilation, but before binding the same, I received a letter from Helen S. Eustis (Mrs. Alvin A. Eustis Jr.) of 945 Euclid Avenue, Berkeley, California 94706 enclosing therewith a photographic copy of an article from the Cumberland Advocate (Wisconsin) dated July 14, 1932 perporting to have been prepared by, or the result of an interview, with a grandchild of "William Eustis" (6). The following facts have been extracted from this newspaper article. I believe the author is R. B. Hart.

The article in Cumberland Advocate of July 14, 1932 describes "William" (who was small with black hair, later white, blue eyes and prominent nose) as born in Newbury-port on March 4, 1799; served as a clerk for three years; set himself up in business at Eastport, Maine and evidently prospered. He married April 26, 1823 to Frances Winslow, who bore him four children:

- 1.) William Jr. (7) - went to California in 1849
- 2.) Elizabeth (7) - mother of person providing this information - married John Barger and had four children
- 3.) Frances (7) b. Dec. 19, 1823; went to California; m. August Bond; there were six children.
- 4.) Andrew (7) went to California in 1852

She acquired tuberculosis and believing her health would be improved he sold his Eastport business in 1853, planning to emigrate to Illinois, but Mrs. Frances Winslow Eustis died before the move could be made.

With his four children he crossed the Alleghany Mts., floated down the Ohio and travelled up the Mississippi and Illinois Rivers, settling near Springfield, Illinois, not far from present Loami. Here he built a house.

In 1840 he married Martha Sowell, who bore him three children:

- 1.) Charles (7) b. Sept. 12, 1842 in Auburn, Illinois, Sangamon County
- 2.) Jane (7)
- 3.) Mary (7)

It is stated that he suffered from the default of his contract covering sale of his Eastport property and went thru bankruptcy in the panic of 1837.

In Illinois William (6) Eustis suffered from malaria and he moved to Wisconsin in 1846. He built a house for his daughter, the widow of John Barger, near his own home. He was a Unitarian whom it was said took particular care in finding jobs to do on Sunday morning. He was a constant reader but only attended common schools. He was an original stockholder and director of the First National Bank of Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin. His politics were Republican and ardent supporter of Lincoln. He was never profane, used chewing tobacco, but did not smoke or use coffee, tea or alcohol. He was a very active public spirited citizen of Fort Atkinson - town clerk many years and very active in support of schools.

This article states that as of July 14, 1932 only two descendants of William (6) survive who have the name of Eustis; namely Frank L. Eustis (8) and his son Lawrence Uglow Eustis (9).

ELIZABETH (7) EUSTIS (William 6, William 5, John 4, William 3, William 2, William 1) was b. Dec. 17, 1823; m. June 4, 1843 to John Barger in Sangamon Co., Illinois; children were:

1. William Montgomery Barger; b. June 13, 1844
11. Winslow H. Barger; b. Apr. 4, 1846
111. Frances Eustis Barger; b. Apr. 23, 1848 (thrice mar.)
- 1V. John Andrew Barger; b. Dec. 5, 1849

3

Second marriage - m. Apr. 5, 1860 to R.B. Hart; children were:

1. Royal Bryant Hart; b. June 8, 1866

Elizabeth (7) died at Holly Springs, Mo. on Sept. 13, 1903 in the home of her daughter (above) Mrs. Henry C. Allen (3 times married) Frances Eustis Barger (Orendorff) (Waterman) (Allen)

ANDREW (7) EUSTIS (William 6, William 5, John 4, William 3, William 2, William 1); Andrew Eustis (7) went to California with Frances (7) (his sister); arrived well in California; (see letter Andrew (7) to William (6) on Nov. 20, 1852) said his "sister is well near Sacramento." Andrew kept a store at Matheneys Creek, Cal. for a man named Smith; said he heard nothing of William (7) but had heard from Aunt Donners children (see William (5) children); Litha Donner at school and is a widow; Leana Donner married 3 weeks prior to letter and Frances Donner living with a Mr. Reed - not a good home. Two younger children with a Dutch family. Frances (7) wrote about him to Elizabeth (7) Hart Jan. 31, 1864 from Elk Grove, Cal.

FRANCES (7) EUSTIS (William 6, William 5, John 4, William 3, William 2, William 1) was b. Dec. 19, 1823; went to California; m. August Bond; lived at Elk Grove, Cal., 12 miles south of Sacramento; visited Oakland in 1880; children were:

- I. George Eustis Bond
- II. Ella Bond
- III. Albert Bond
- IV. Frank Bond
- V. Charles Bond
- VI. Effie Bond

WILLIAM (7) EUSTIS (William 6, William 5, John 4, William 3, William 2, William 1); William Eustis (7) went to California in 1849. The following is a quotation from a letter about William Eustis (7) from his sister Frances Eustis Bond at Elk Grove, Cal. to their sister Elizabeth Eustis Hart dated Jan. 31, 1864. "Well, William has made us a visit after an absence of 4 years. He appeared to me like one from the dead one Sunday morning about the middle of Oct. I received one letter from him about 6 months after he left here, and never heard from him again until he stood right in the door. He spent two weeks with us. He came to San Francisco to buy goods. He has made a good deal of money trading in Sarrona. He had $3,000 to buy goods with. He left here the 3rd of Nov. I received a letter from him dated Dec. 9. He was to start that day per steamer to Los Angeles. From thence across the country by land to Sarrona. I am quite anxious to hear from him. He was in excellent spirits when here - talked a great deal of the folks at home. I wanted him to write to you or father. He thought he would, then he said he wouldn't; that he had never received one word from any of you and he would not be the one to write first, but if you write to him he would answer. His P. Office is Tucson, Arizona Territory. Do write to him. He feels as though he had been neglected and shed tears when speaking of you." William Eustis (7) is reported to have finally settled in Tucson, Arizona. He is supposed to have married a Spanish woman and to have had a family, but when he died he willed his property to his sister Frances (7) (Mrs. August Bond).

CHARLES (7) EUSTIS (William 6, William 5, John 4, William 3, William 2, William 1) was b. Sept. 12, 1841; m. Mar. 27, 1865 to Maria A. Hart who d. Apr. 22, 1918; he d. Nov. 14, 1917; both int. in Ward Cemetery, Ft. Atkinson, Wisconsin; children were:
